The film's visual effects supervisor was John Berton, who noted that a live-action version of Charlotte's Web has become much more practical in recent years thanks to technological advances.[4] Winick Á"was adamant" that Charlotte and Templeton (the two characters in the film entirely computer generated) had to be realistic and not stylized, although they had given Charlotte almond eyes. [5] John Dietz, visual effects supervisor for Rising Sun Pictures, notes that there was a debate about the opportunity to give her a mouth and that they eventually decided to move the cheliceri in what he describes as a veil, as if there were a mouth behind it. The three geese that appeared in the film were purchased in Nilumbik County, Victoria from Burford Family Farm in Hurstbridge. According to the former Spanish voice actor Alba Clementon who voiced Charlotte in the Spanish (Castilian) version, she, Jose Parada (who nicknamed John), Manolo GarcAAa (who nicknamed Ike) and Juan Carlos Gustems (who nicknamed Samuel) who sat together in a recording booth and watched the sequence of "Ordinary Miracle", French actress Laetitia Costa, who voiced Charlotte in the French version, and German voice actor Peter Flechtner, Who voiced John in the German version, burst into tears while listening to this song.
